"DOWN THE RIVER."

Is Where the Bridges Have Gone That Recently Spanned the Republican. In the history of the oldest inhabit ant there has never been known to have been as disagreeable and cold winter weather as that which we have just experienced. Consequently the Republican river has been frozen to s greater extent than ever before, and when the warm rays of a March sun began to soften the congesled water people began to surmise that sad havoc would follow to all bridges that were not high enough to let the gorge pass under. Their fears were not ground-MISS WEED of Superior, is visiting less as has been already observed by those conversant with the river during A. L. Funk has Japanese wheat and the last few days. The recent break-up caused the ice to move and all the way up the valley came the news that "ice was king" and was sweeping everything with L. C. Graham the abstract man. before it. A dozen or more bridges have been swept into the stream leaving the wayfarer on the banks thinking of "sweet home, and how will I get there." Three bridges have been carried away this week by the ice, which leads us to ask why it is that better bridges are not built and thus save the annual expense of rebuilding and repairing. Enough money has already been put into the three bridges, viz Inavale, Red Cloud and Guide Rock to have built three good iron bridges that would have taken ages to wear out. It is the opinion of THE CHIEF that the tax pavers would rather vote to build good bridges at once than to be comtrip to Wisconsin and Illinois the first pelled to pay taxes to repair wooden and worthless bridges every little while E. The annual meeting will be held on the first Monday in April. During the ten days preceeding the meeting the director, or some person authorised to do so, should take the census of all persons between five and twenty-one years of age, married or unmarried. Scholars moving from one district to another during this time will be enumerated in the district to which they move. Men and women are equal before the law regarding the right to vote at the school smeeting. The school board should be very particular in their an nual settlement. The treasurer should have his report fully completed, hal anced, and be ready to present any and all vouchers, and after the meeting is persectly satisfied as to its correct ness, the director should put it in his annual report correctly balance! and every cent accounted for before it i sent to this office. If directors will read all the instructions on their re port it will saye much time and confus ion, and obviate the necessity of su perintendent returning the report for correction. I did not put in the report this year the amount of money on hand at the beginning of the past year but it is expected that the report wi show the same amount as was said to be on hand last year, if it is not so it will be considered wrong. The state superintendent imakes the following statement in his last report: The county superintendents are made guardians and are given power to investigate school accounts, and to reject incorrect accounts and approve correct ones. It consequently devolves upon them to be extremely cautious in the discharge of this duty. The system of keeping accounts is simple and the majority of officers are accustomed to it, and this evil should be made to entirely disappear. C. W. Spinger. Co. Sup t. Sons of Veterans.
